The Feed first look: The Tippler

One of the season's hottest bar openings is popping off this Friday: Cocktail consulting stars Tad Carducci and Paul Tanguay, of the Tipping Bros., lay down roots in the Chelsea Market with subterranean drinkery the Tippler. The industrial 100-seat space is outfitted with distressed burgundy banquettes, exposed-brick walls and massive steel columns. Take a seat at the marble bar and choose from the draft beer and wine selections or the 20-drink cocktail menu, featuring best-selling quaffs from the pair's prior gigs, such as the Dizzy Oaxacan, with mescal, Averna, ginger beer, grapefruit, lemon and cayenne. Those looking to cool off can check out a selection of grown-up "lushies," including a frozen Negroni and an absinthe-basil frappe. You can soak up all the booze with small plates (panini at Amy's Bread, beef tartare from Dickson's Farmstand Meats), built with ingredients from the market's shops. 425 W 15th St between Ninth and Tenth Aves (212-206-0000)
